

Shore Blanton Testimonial

What is obvious when you look at a Shore Blanton home is the quality of their work. What is not obvious is their extraordinary attention to detail, their level of customer service, and the level of knowledge and experience they possess. This all translates into identifying and suggesting the right changes and adjustments that always seem necessary with new construction.

During the past twenty years we have designed and built seven new homes (this is the first home we built while one of us was not living or working in close proximity to the new construction, something that concerned us since we were living over 1,000 miles away). We have worked with some excellent builders, but none compare to this team, including the Shore Blanton sub-contractors who are first-rate.

Before and throughout construction Harry and Tom were always prepared, worked with us reviewing our building blueprints, identified potential problems and made several design suggestions – from the width of walls to fundamental design changes that accommodated the floor plan we wanted. Since completion, they continue to work with us making the minor changes and adjustments that we feel are needed.

Simply said, we believe Harry Shore and Tom Blanton are the best in the industry and we recommend them without reservation. They are great to work with and make building a new home a pleasurable experience.
